How do you, dear teacher, enhance your learner's ability to think and respond entrepreneurially?

LEEN (liminality & educational entrepreneurship) seeks to find out how entrepreneurship in its broad sense is implemented throughout the curriculum.

We are a group of teachers and entrepreneurs who are designing an entrepreneurship ecology in educational environments.

We therefore would like to ask you, dear teacher, how you link your teaching practice to entrepreneurship in its broad sense as defined by the European commission:

"an individual's ability to turn ideas into action. It includes creativity, innovation, showing initiative and risk-taking, as well as the ability to plan and manage projects in order to achieve objectives."

We realise you can't achieve all aspects in one lesson. So we appreciate good practices which focus on one or a few features of entrepreneurship.

CASE DESCRIPTION. Could you describe a lesson during which you asked your learner's to turn ideas into action?

The concept Training firm is a way to turn ideas into action.

When did it take place?

Every year the students develop this concept.

How long did the activity last?

The activity are lasting one school year.

How would you describe the teacher's role?

The teacher are managing the activity of the students.

How would you describe the learner's role?

The learners are managing their own business.

Were there people involved from outside the class or school?

Yes. Every Training firm have a tutor, who have a real business.

How would you describe their role?

The tutor explain to the students the real economics proces.

How would you describe the school's role?

The school role is to offer the suport for the students and for the company. In this way the students knows what are the real economics process. The theoretical knowledges are tranforming into practical knowledges.

LEARNER'S EXPERIENCE. How and why did the learners use their creativity?

The students must sell and buy products into a virtual market.
They must study the market and develop strategies.

How and why did the learners become innovative?

Between the Training firms are competition and the students must find the propos strategies to sell more than their competitors.

How and when did they show initiative?

The students are showing their initiative since at the beginning of training firm

Which risks did they have to take?

The students choose the strategy that they will develop.If the strategy is not proper the firm's activity are affected.

How and why did they have to let go of old habits?

The information that they are getting changing their strategies.

How did they deal with failures?

The failures are the moments when they are making economics analysis and they are changing the strategy.

How did they explore the improbable, the impossible, the unrealistic, the forbidden?

The students are trying to find a idea which can help them .

How did they find a focus?

They are using brainstorming.

How did they manage the process?

The teacher are helping the students to managing the best ideas.

What was the end product?

The end product is the profit of the training firm (how many products the training firm had sell).

What would you say was the most challenging feature for this project?

The number of training firms are increase every year and the competition between them are increasing every year.

How do you prepare your learners to embrace entrepreneurial learning?

I am encouraging the students to use their economic knowledges in the virtual activity of training firms.

Is there anything else you feel is important for educational entrepreneurship?
